

Abstract

A roof design has an external sheet covering (1), an insulating layer (3) provided beneath the sheet covering (1) and a load carrying structure (10) that supports the insulating layer (3). It is significant of the roof design that elements (7) for transporting an energy absorbing medium is provided in the insulating layer (3).